anowa tonight that the administration was considering the question of sending additional troops to Vera Cruz, and probably would do so.

This step would not be intended as an aggressive measure, but as a precaution. An evidence of the serious coss of conditions was contained in a report foday that two German mer-chant vensels were about to arrive at Puerto Mexico with arms and am-munition for Huerta.

It was realized that this, if true, would present an incident similar to the arrival of the Ypiranga at Vera Cruz, which led to the American oc-cupation of that port.

Huerta Makes Protest.

Hucra's protest to the mediators that the United States had broken the armistice by landing additional troops at Vera Cruz, was considered by the cabinet and later Secretary Bryan announced the reply of this government stated that no aggressive action had stated that no aggressive action had been taken by the United States forces and that nothing had been done to violate the suspension of hostilities

The American reply was delivered to the mediators late today. The mediat-ors themselves also took the view that the question raised by fluorts over the observance of the armistice could be pleared away, and that Huerta could be convinced that the United States

The discussion of reinforcing Gan-eral Puncton, at Vera Cruz, has devel-oped a marked difference of opinion in the cabinet. Some take the view that the mediation negotiations might be embarrassed by such an act; others pelleve it a necessary precaution General Functon is understood to have sold the war department that his lines are vulnorable at different points and that a sudden attack along the rail-road would necessitate the withdrawal of forces from other points, which would be left unprotected. He has informed the war department that be will need aftern thousand to eighteen thousand men to hold Vera Cruz and outlying districts.

The fact that the ermy officers had recommended the sending of at least $6,000 to $6,000 men to Vera Cruz became known generally in official guarters. A number of officials adultived that the adultification was confronted with the problem of deciding whether it would finit its military activities to protecting the forces already at Vera Cruz or wester a sufficient number of men would be paided in readiness at Vera Cruz for a flying expedition to Mexico City in case the Huerte regime collapsed and irresponsible bands threatened the lives of Americans and other foreigners in the cipital.
